

The integrity of the FCC is in my estimation on the line with this decision. The line between news and political advertisement may be difficult to draw in some instances, but no fair-minded person could possibly argue that in this instance. If you allow this "documentary" to air as news, you betray the public trust at the most fundamental level.